WHAT ARE COUNTY BOARDS OF DD?

County boards of DD are local public agencies that support Ohioans with developmental disabilities and their families. They coordinate services and supports, help people get involved in the community and find work, and sometimes offer early intervention for infants and toddlers and schools for children. For more than 50 years, county boards have used a mix of local, state, and federal funds to support people who are born with or develop disabilities that they will have throughout their lives.

Each county board of DD is governed by seven unpaid, volunteer board members. Five are appointed by county commissioners. Two are appointed by the county probate judge. Board members serve four-year terms and may serve a total of 12 years. At least some board members are required to be relatives of people with developmental disabilities. Board members select a superintendent who oversees day-to-day operations and manages employees such as service and support administrators (case managers), therapists, and other staff.

County boards determine eligibility for services, assist people with developmental disabilities in setting and achieving long-term goals, and help the people they serve lead happy, fulfilling lives.

County Board of DD Supports

County boards offer localized services and supports based on the needs of their communities. Under Ohio law, all boards must offer certain services and supports and may offer others if the need and resources exist.

Under state law, county boards of DD must:

- Determine eligibility of county residents for DD services and supports;
- Provide case management to help people with developmental disabilities decide what services and supports they need and how they can be provided and paid for;
- Coordinate, monitor, and evaluate DD services and supports for safety, quality, and reliability;
- Ensure the health and safety of people with developmental disabilities and step in if/when necessary to advocate for people who are at risk;
- Provide or contract for adult services, including employment services and job training for people with developmental disabilities;
- Use local tax levy dollars and federal Medicaid money to fund services while keeping open, transparent financial records and filing annual reports;
- Pay federal Medicaid waiver match to “draw down” federal money to help pay for services and supports;
- Adopt a budget, authorize expenses, and handle all board-related personnel matters; and
- Help people served by the board find jobs and set the county board’s goals for community-based employment.

Under state law, county boards of DD are permitted but not required to:

- Provide or contract for early intervention services for infants and toddlers;
- Provide or contract for education services for school-age children; and
- Provide or contract for supportive in-home services.

Each of Ohio’s county boards of DD is the primary funder and monitor of DD services within its boundaries. Boards work in tandem with private service providers, family members, and the community to help people with developmental disabilities get the services and supports they need. County boards of DD support people with developmental disabilities from the time they are born to the ends of their lives.

HOW TO USE THE LIFE MAP

This Life Map booklet is a quick-reference guide designed to let you see from the perspective of a person with a developmental disability who receives support from Ohio's county boards of developmental disabilities (DD). It will introduce you to the support networks that county boards create and how those support networks are used throughout people's lives.

Each life stage section of this guide will include short explanations of the roles that people with developmental disabilities, family members, county boards, and private service providers should play throughout the life of someone supported by a county board of DD. The sections will also include lists of policy tools and progress markers for any successful life plan.

SECTION KEY

Person

All people who have developmental disabilities have central roles to play in their own lives. This section denotes the considerations that must be made by and for a person during the life stage in question. Also listed are suggested steps to prepare a person for the next stage of life and guidance for measuring how the person's life plan is helping meet long-term goals.

Family Members

Family members are often the most in tune with the needs and desires of people with developmental disabilities. This section denotes what role the family of a person should play at a given point in that person's life and what responsibilities they should undertake at that time.

Specialized Service Providers

People with developmental disabilities (and their families) choose specialized service providers with the help and support of county boards of DD. These services can include adult day supports, employment, medical care, transportation, and more. Service providers may be private companies, non-profits, or independent caregivers.

Service Partners

This section lists the public, private, and non-profit entities that are separate and distinct from the day-to-day operations of a county board of DD. These entities play either a direct or indirect role in the ability of people with developmental disabilities to live in their communities and must be taken into account as potential partners in a person's Individual Service Plan (ISP).

County Board

This section shows what roles Ohio county boards of DD play at the life stage being discussed. It is divided into two parts: critical functions that a board must fulfill and special objectives that are unique to that stage of a person's life.

Funding Sources

Financial support is essential for people with developmental disabilities and their families. This section contains the various sources of funding for people in need of services during a specific stage of life.

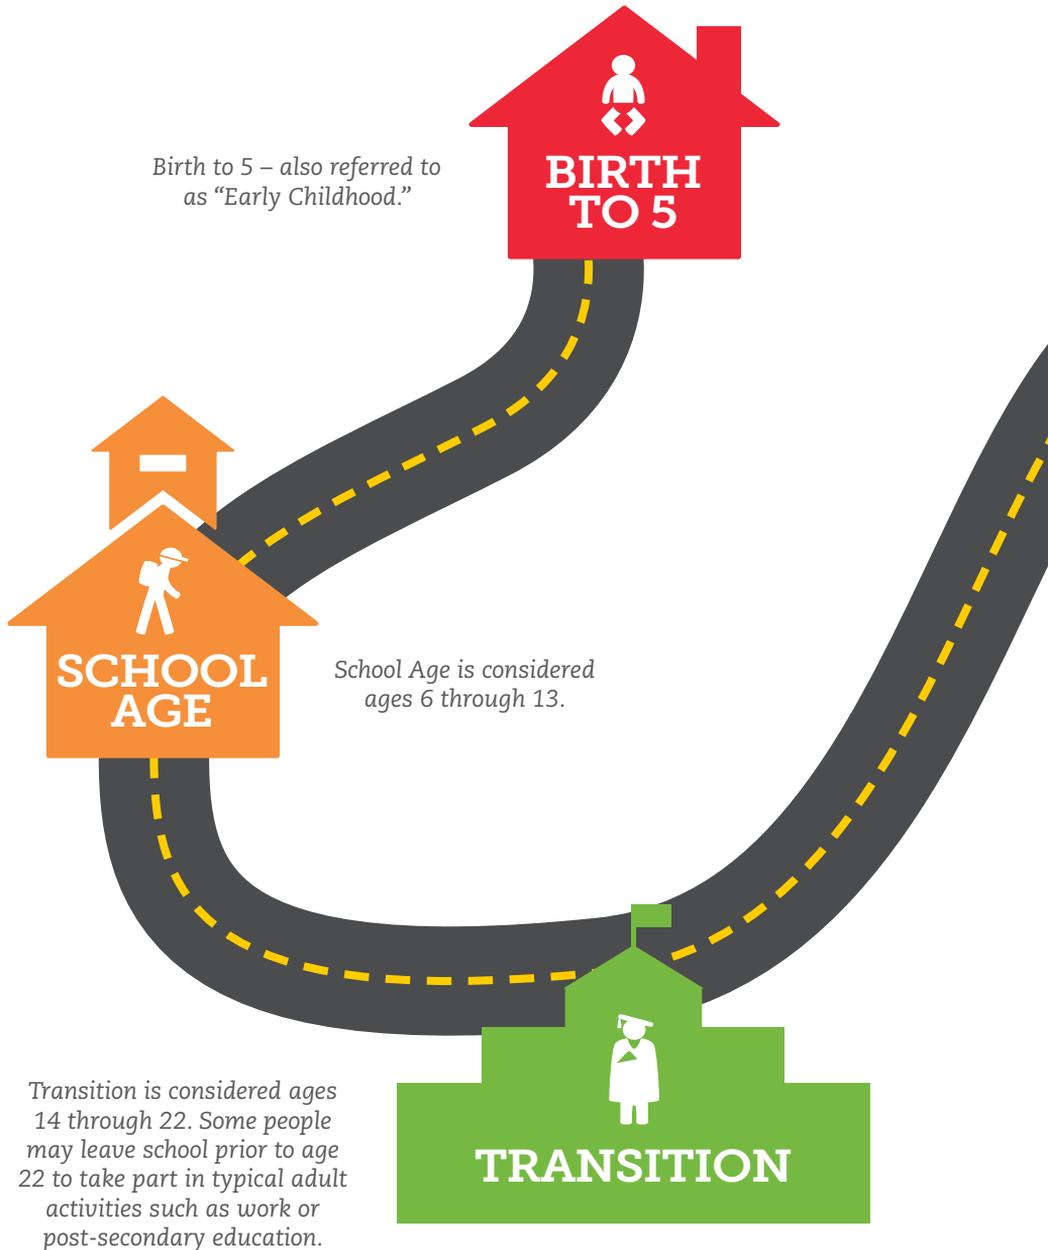

Benchmarks for Success

This section shows what goals should be met for a person in the life stage in question. Essential progress markers are also listed as ways to measure whether or not those goals have been achieved.

LIFE MAP

Adulthood is considered age 23 through the age at which a person retires. Depending on a person's abilities, retirement may take place before or after the age of 65.

Retirement is the period of time after a person stops working but is still in good health and active with friends, family, and the community.

Aging is when a person begins to require a higher level of ongoing care and starts to plan end-of-life decisions, often with the support of family members.

BIRTH TO 5

PERSON

The most important developmental period of a person's life is from birth to age 5. During this time, a person grows and develops emotionally, socially, and physically in ways that will affect them throughout life. Supports during this time can yield lifelong benefits. People establish their health and wellness needs during this period and begin to form the emotional and social resilience necessary to effectively navigate life with a disability.

Family Members

Increase caregiver confidence and competence

Develop and work toward a positive future for their loved one

Build social and emotional resilience within the family

Specialized Service Providers

County board early intervention staff

Child care providers

Preschools

Respite care providers

Behavioral support specialists who assist the family at home

County Board

Critical Functions

Protect a child's health and safety

Identify the needs of the child and family and create a plan to meet those needs

Regularly evaluate how effectively the plan is meeting needs, adjust as necessary

Offer Early Intervention services to help meet key developmental goals (sometimes in conjunction with Help Me Grow)

Offer continuous family support throughout a person's lifetime

Special Objectives

Provide evidence-based Early Intervention services and supports

Coach family members on caring for their child in the home and community

Assist family members with planning for the future as their child grows up

Help to access other services/ local connections where appropriate

Funding Sources

County board levy dollars

Medicaid/Medicaid waivers

Local school districts

Family health insurance

Family-generated income

Applicable state programs

Benchmarks for Success

Developmental goals for the child are clearly defined

Children's accomplishments and progress can be measured

Family member outcomes are clearly defined

Transition into kindergarten meets the needs of the child and family

SCHOOL AGE

PERSON

Between ages 6 and 21, formal schooling prepares children with developmental disabilities for future challenges. School becomes part of children's daily routines, and programs are individualized to meet students' academic, social, and emotional needs so they can reach their highest potential. At this stage, local school districts help parents create an individualized education plan (IEP) that outlines annual goals for their child.

Family Members

Continue building social and emotional resilience within the family and with a widening social circle

Support friendships and a student's general social well-being

Specialized Service Providers

County board-operated schools

Day care providers

Need-specific schools (such as those for children with autism)

Respite care providers

Behavioral support specialists who assist the family at home

Medical providers and specialists

Occupational, speech, and physical therapists

Intervention specialists

Local school districts

Family health insurance

Family-generated income

Applicable state programs

Federal and state funding through the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act

Benchmarks for Success

Students are welcomed and valued in school, not just tolerated

Students participate in school activities—being of the school, not just in the school

Students' accomplishments and progress can be measured

Developmental goals for students are clearly defined

Family member outcomes and goals are defined

Students advance through the K-12 system

TRANSITION

PERSON

When children with disabilities enter their teenage years, they begin to consider the future. What sort of work should they do as adults? Will they be able to work? What skills will they need to live independently? At age 14, transition planning becomes a key part of a person's individual education plan to answer these and other important questions. At this stage, it is critical that a person begin to develop a social network outside the family.

Family Members

Begin understanding the needs and capabilities of their loved one now that the person is maturing into adulthood

For the first time, a person's "family" may include other formal and informal social relationships, such as friends, teachers, neighbors, etc.

Local school districts

Medicaid/Medicaid waivers

Applicable state programs

Personal/family-generated income

Specialized STABLE savings accounts

Federal and state funding through the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act

Benchmarks for Success

People can work or study in integrated environments

People are able to secure jobs if desired

People are able to attend college if desired

A plan exists for a person's future with increasing individual control over life, work, leisure, and general competency development

Plans and goals for family are in place to support a person in achieving long-term goals

ADULTHOOD

PERSON

Adults with developmental disabilities often prefer to be as independent as possible. Some will enter the workforce, while others will choose to spend their days in non-work environments. While independent living is ideal, some people with disabilities might require family or county board support due to the limitations caused by their disabilities. Making friends and being active in the community are essential throughout this period.

Family Members

Expand a person's community exposure to support adult activities

Help broaden a person's social network to include parts of the wider community

Offer knowledge of resources to help adults make decisions

Specialized Service Providers

Direct support professionals for home and personal care needs

Coordinate supports for people who engage in criminal behavior in partnership with the adult justice system

Funding Sources

County board levy dollars

Medicaid/Medicaid waivers

Applicable state programs

Employer-provided health insurance and other benefits

Personal/family-generated income

Benchmarks for Success

People feel they have a high quality of life with opportunities to interact with all community members as desired

Happiness at work, including type of job, hours worked, income/benefits, and stability

A person has a healthy life, including safe and affordable housing, meaningful social relationships, access to transportation, access to medical and preventative care, and opportunities for recreation/fun

People have control of their own plans for the future

Plans and goals for family are in place to support a person

RETIREMENT

PERSON

As people with developmental disabilities age, they must think about how to spend their days and live on reduced incomes. This includes establishing a timeline for retirement, finding post-employment daytime activities, and determining the best long-term housing arrangements for one's needs. Many people opt for volunteer activities or take advantage of senior social programs. As always, community bonds are important in this life stage.

Family Members

Help locate and coordinate resources to assist retirement-age loved ones with their day-to-day needs

May choose to help people with disabilities enroll in the same senior services as parents and relatives without disabilities

Specialized Service Providers

Direct support professionals for home and personal care needs

Integrated senior/aging and day habilitation programs

Medical providers and specialists

Occupational and physical therapists

A plan exists for a person's future that puts the person in control of day-to-day and long-term needs

Plans and goals for family are in place to support a person

AGING

PERSON

Old age brings new challenges for a person with a developmental disability, including physical limitations, general health problems, and end-of-life decisions. Often, a person's family and social network are reduced, making it more difficult to live independently. It is important that a plan for end-of-life decisions is made well before reaching this stage of life. Family and community ties remain very important.

Family Members

Identify who will help a person with aging and end-of-life decisions

Assist with living wills, guardianship agreements, and final arrangements
